

WERE YOU A SHAREHOLDER OF BIGKNOWLEDGE OR HUBBLE?
YOU MAY RECEIVE MONEY

A settlement agreement has been reached in the class action brought by Jean-François Paris against the directors Renaud Lafrance, Alain Lafrance, Colleen Smith, Yvon Chouinard, André Duquenne, Michel Morin and Chubb Insurance Company of Canada (the defendants). This agreement is without any admission of responsibility whatsoever.

The action alleged losses due to the directors' faults in the context of the public offerings (court file: 500-06-000440-087). Said alleged faults are denied.

Who can get money? All persons who were or became shareholders of Capital Hubble Inc. or BigKnowledge Enterprises Inc. between June 24, 2005, and December 6, 2005, except for shareholders who made a profit from the sale of their shares. The officers and directors of these companies are also excluded.

How much? A total sum of $ 850,000 will be divided among the class members in proportion to their losses. The compensation that each class member will receive depends on the number of class members who will claim.

From the sum of $ 850,000, a fee equal to 20% of the settlement plus tax ($ 195,457.50), plus legal fees and administrative expenses of $ 20,000, are requested by the lawyers of Trudel Johnston & Lespérance ("TJL").

Why notify us? The agreement, the protocol providing for the distribution of indemnities and TJL's fees must be approved by a judge of the Superior Court. To read the agreement and the protocol, go to: www.tjl.quebec/en/.

You can contest the agreement, the protocol and the fees. To do this, you must send your contestation to TJL by email, fax or registered mail before January 21, 2019. The contestations will be forwarded to the judge and you can present your contestation to the judge during the hearing.

When? TJL will submit the agreement, protocol and legal fees to Judge Mongeon of the Superior Court on January 29, 2019, at 9:30 am in Room 16.12 of the Montreal Courthouse. You can come to the audition if you wish to.
